THE BUZZ

MARCH/APRIL 2015

Dear Readers,

The Hosted Outreach Post Office
Service will begin trading in our village hall next Monday. It was very sad when we lost our village Post Office.
So please show your support to this new service we have been given.

Your continued support of The Buzz has meant that I have been able to donate £600 to the refurbishment of our hall despite printing costs. Thank you so much.

You may be interested to learn that a gentleman from Halwill is hoping to begin regular classes for Ballroom Dancing in our hall from 16th April. See further mention in this Newsletter. This is another in a range of activities now available to take part in.

Please, if you have any news you would like The Buzz to publish I am here to oblige! But remember it must be with me for the 20th April to be included in the next edition.

The Post Office is opening at last!

Bridgerule Village Hall Committee is delighted to announce that the New Post Office will be opening at the hall at 12-30am this Monday (2nd March). The opening hours will be from 12-30am to 4-30pm on Mondays and from 9-30am to 1-30pm on Wednesdays.

All the Post Office services we enjoyed at the old shop will be available and as an opening ceremony there will be a free tea or coffee and light refreshments for every customer on the first day!

The service we are getting is a "Hosted Outreach" where a neighbouring Postmaster visits the hall twice a week to provide an impressive range of services. In our case Ian Croxton from Kilkhampton Post Office will be waiting to greet you.

Please, Please, Please show your support. We are extremely lucky to be given a second chance and there must be enough people in Bridgerule to keep the new Post Office busy for 8 hours a week. In these days of cuts and "rationalising" as they call it, you don't need me to tell you that the new service has to pay its way.

We have set up the new Post Office inside the hall foyer and a lot of work has gone in to getting the service up and running, not least by the Post Office themselves. They have been pushing to move things along since September last year when the building improvements were completed. If you haven't seen what we have done then please do come along The Post Box is now at the hall as well and we have many other plans to make the hall the main hub of the village as our project goes on.

There have been a few technical problems getting the internet system up and running but we're gradually dragging the hall, kicking and screaming in to the 21st Century. The internet was too much of a shock for the poor old building but we got there in the end. All we can do now is hope everyone will make the most of a service we thought was lost forever.

Please Use It!!!!

Spotlight on Alan Beat....

I was born on 25th July 1949 and lived in north London to the age of 10 when my family moved to Houghton Regis in Bedfordshire. Passing the eleven-plus examination gave me a place at Dunstable grammar school, where a new friend introduced me to angling. This led me out into the countryside and the natural world for the first time, where a lifelong interest took hold.

I became an avid reader of fishing magazines but found little of relevance to a schoolboy catching tiddlers from the local canal. So at the age of 14 I wrote a short feature based on my own experience and sent it off. To my amazement, this was published, a cheque for three guineas arrived by post, and a freelance writing career was born.

My father had started his own engineering business and I began working there on Saturdays to earn pocket money. Developing an interest in making things and problem solving, I left school at 16 to study Ordinary National Certificate in engineering at Luton Technical College. I became apprenticed to an instrument manufacturing company called George Kent, later transferring to Hayward Tyler, a pump manufacturer, both based in Luton. This led eventually to a degree course at Hatfield Polytechnic. By this point angling had become my passion and occupied virtually all my spare time. Joining with a small group of like-minded friends who pooled their knowledge and effort, I specialised in catching the largest possible fish from local waters. I bought, and learned to use, a good camera and sold photographs and articles about our catches to the angling press.

Fortunately there was a three month close season in those days which was supposedly for fish to breed in peace, but also provided a welcome breathing space for keen anglers to behave almost normally. During the 1970 close season, I met Rosie at a party in Hertford, and life would never be the same again! We shared a love of the natural world, Rosie inheriting a special interest in wild flowers from her parents, and myself developing from angling a fascination in everything seen at the waterside.

I graduated in 1971 with an honours degree in mechanical engineering, and worked as a design engineer for Hayward Tyler for two years before joining the family business. Rosie and I married on 10th August 1974 and began our life together in Aspley Guise, a sizeable village close to the tiny hamlet of Milton Keynes! Rosie taught the infant class in nearby village school, while I drove to the Luton factory of Thomas Beat Engineering Company each working day.

My father had built a thriving business around his own practical skills, offering a sub-contract machining service to larger companies, specializing in prototype and small batch work. Every job was different, while competitive pressure challenged us to find faster ways of making things. Work flow varied considerably and I saw the need for longer-term contracts as existed in the aerospace industry, but sub-contractors had first to meet demanding standards as air safety is paramount. After much preparation, I won a first contract from British Aerospace, and more soon followed from major companies like Marconi and Rolls Royce. Most of this work was high precision in nature, needing very accurate machining and measurement. We made components for satellites, air-borne radar and helicopter engines among many other things.

My father progressively handed over control of the business to me before retiring altogether in 1979. The next year I qualified as a Chartered Mechanical Engineer at the unusually young age of 30, as I'd been fortunate to have the necessary management experience earlier than most. However, during the nineteen eighties manufacturing in the UK entered a steep decline, and I saw no long term future in engineering to support my family, now grown to include Katie and Martin. I talked it through with Rosie and decided to sell the business as a going concern if the right buyer could be found. That process took four years to complete in 1987, with all jobs secured for the time being under new ownership.

Meanwhile, we began preparing for a complete change of direction, seeking a better quality of life in smallholding. We dug up the front lawn learning to grow vegetables, and kept hens - our first livestock - in the back garden for their eggs. Rosie attended a sheep training course. Holidays were spent researching where we might live, until serious house hunting began with the sale of the business. Eventually we found the Bridge Mill and moved here in November 1987.

The village school had 28 pupils and our two made it 30. Katie was then aged 8 and Martin rising 5. Mrs. Sutton was an excellent head teacher and both children made good progress, moving on to Holsworthy Community College, then North Devon College for A levels, until both graduated at Oxford: Katie studying at University College and Martin at St Edmunds Hall. Not bad for rural village school kids!

Here at the Mill, Rosie and I have embraced a whole new way of life.

Local people welcomed us warmly, helped us whenever asked, and encouraged us to succeed. In 1989 I started writing a regular feature for Country Smallholding magazine, and am still at it 25 years later!

In 2004 my first book, "A start in smallholding" was published. After a long process of restoration, the mill began grinding flour once more by water power in 2012.

Through open days and educational visits we have shared this lovely corner of Devon with many thousands of people ranging from babes-in-arms to a wonderful lady aged 100 who walked all the way round; and hopefully some good will come of it. I have served terms as a school governor and parish councilor, while currently I lead the village hedge and coppice group. My passion for angling has subsided as other outdoor interests have taken over. My second book "The smallholding handbook" is due for publication early this year. I may have reached pension age, but there seems no prospect of retirement just yet!

The Editor wishes to thank Alan for his Spotlight and for what he and Rosie Police launch Operation Jessica to protect the elderly and vulnerable from fraud..

Following a recent rise in the numbers of frauds against the elderly in the North and West of Devon, Police have developed Operation Jessica. It aims to warn and protect elderly and vulnerable residents against the perils of frauds, particularly those designed to catch people off guard via phone calls or through the mail.

Since May 2014, thirty five elderly victims have fallen foul of frauds operated by organised criminals, defrauding them out of life savings totalling over £600,000. Police suspect the figure is higher, with many incidents going unreported. The average age of victims is 75.

Operation Jessica has been launched to reduce the likelihood of further elderly people becoming victims.

This operation is about protecting the most fragile members of our community from frauds which come through the postal system and criminals who contact them by phone. By raising awareness of this these frauds and working with the community we intend to make North and West Devon a less profitable environment for criminals to operate within. We all have a role to play in preventing this type of crime, and this could be as simple as discussing these types of fraud with an elderly relative, friend or neighbour and what they can do to prevent themselves from falling victim to one of these frauds.

In liaison with Trading Standards police have identified 340 people whom fraudsters may be targeting and as part of the operation, uniformed police teams will be visiting people on this list to identify victims of crime and enable them to take steps to reduce the likelihood of further victimisation.

Always check the identification of anyone at your door, if for any reason you are still unsure check with the organisation the individual represents using a recognised phone number. In the case of the police this is 101.

Be suspicious of any call purporting to be from the police or the bank reporting any fraud on your account. End the call. Never give your PIN, security or bank details to anyone over the phone.

If you receive a call you are unsure of wait at least five minutes before attempting to make another call to ensure you're not reconnected to the offender. Use a different phone e.g. a mobile phone or a neighbour's phone. If that is not possible then phone a known friend that you will recognise to test the phone to confirm you aren't still unwittingly connected to the offender.

Operation Jessica derives its name from 'Think Jessica' a national campaign set up to protect elderly and vulnerable people from postal and phone scams, founded by Marilyn Baldwin OBE. (Action fraud December 2014)

Since May 2014 in North & West Devon the crime figures for fraud are:

35 known/reported offences

Average age of victims is 75

33 victims have been contacted by phone

18 offenders have purported to be Police

6 offenders have purported be from the victims bank

4 offenders have purported to be PPI staff

ROSE SHOWS OFF ANOTHER OF HER TALENTS!

How lucky are we to have such a talented lady living in our village! Its one thing painting on to an A3 sheet of paper but try transferring it on to a massive theatre back drop!

Rose painted these amazing sets for Babes in the Wood, the annual pantomime recently performed at Holsworthy Theatre.

She is also the much appreciated artist for each cover of The Buzz.

Rose has her very own website. Why not pay it a visit. Its bound to bring a smile - www.cartoonchuckle.co.uk (Rose you now owe me one!)

Do you recognise the young lady dressed in blue?

Ros Honey has just completed her first HATS production.

She also took part in our own village pantomimes some years ago!

The Obedient Wife'

There was an English guy who had worked all his life, had saved all of his money, and was a real miser when it came to his money. Just before he died, he said to his Irish wife...'When I die, I want you to take all my money and put it in the casket with me. I want to take my money to the afterlife with me.' And so he got his wife to promise him, with all of her heart, that when he died, she would put all of the money into the casket with him.

Well, he died. He was stretched out in the casket, his wife was sitting there - dressed in black, and her friend was sitting next to her. When they finished the ceremony, and just before the undertakers got ready to close the casket, the wife said, 'Wait just a moment!'

She had a small metal box with her; she came over with the box and put it in the casket. Then the undertakers locked the casket down and they rolled it away. So her friend said,

'Mary, I know you were not foolish enough to put all that money in there with your husband.'

The loyal wife replied, 'Listen, I'm a Christian; I cannot go back on my word. I promised him that I was going to put that money into the casket with him.' You mean to tell me you put that money in the casket with him!?!?!?'

'I sure did,' said the Mary. 'I got it all together, put it into my account, and wrote him a cheque.... If he can cash it, then he can spend it.'

MARCH by Marie Field

At last, at last, bleak February past. And now comes blustery, buffeting March, To blow us away with strong winds. To scatter objects flying, and rolling bins. But less icy roads and slippery lanes, As we creep along to avoid the pain, Of going down with a hefty thwack, To lie in an ungainly heap on our back. But a weak sun to warm cold earth and roots, And fearless daffodils emerging from pale green shoots. Bring bright thoughts of April and of May, With clouds of white blossom along the way. Tiny buds bursting in green hedgerows, And in lush young grass, wild flowers aglow. And glossy black birds with yellow beaks, Seeking fat worms for a family treat. A new green world to somewhat lighten our load, As we pass along life's unpredictable road. For whatever trials and troubles our world may bring,

In 1978 a list of old nicknames were published in the local paper from Bridgerule by the late correspondent Mrs M Bath. Do you recognise any?

Mrs Carole Baker who regularly reads The Buzz has written the following - remembering our floods when she lived in the village as a child.

"I have seen the river running over the chapel wall once, I believe that was the time my mother got on the late Mr Harold Martyn's horse to get into the chapel to see if any water had got in. Surprisingly only a little had seeped in through the side wall on the right hand side as you look at the building. Before the alterations were done to the river path and the wall was built I have seen the water lapping the bottom step of what we call Miss Pratt's shop (the building next to the Pub) that was exciting for a while as the bus could not get through from Holsworthy to go to Bude - and the school bus couldn't come either!!

Mr Loye's property - (empty house on right next to bridge) I don't know what else to call it used to flood and the manhole would come up in his garage and you can imagine what came out of there. Also the carpenters shop and what was then the Post Office (Budds) has been known to have water in the back...I remember Grandad and Dad complaining that they had tins of rusty nails after a flood. It was all part of our childhood, why do people have to change things, this time they have not made it better, surely if you put great boulders in a river path it stops the flow.

On the other hand, the year of the big freeze the river froze over we could see the fish swimming under the ice. The late Bill Vinnicombe (Tamar House opposite the school) drove his tractor under the bridge on the ice and lan, my husband, walked from Scotland Farm to the Village on the river. We had a great time skidding on the ice on the river. The older ones in the village used to say that the river could be expected to flood twice a year, one to let the fish up to spawn and one to let the fish down".
